Segregated system

Who

This information is meant to inform producers who want to buy and process sustainable palm oil using the Segregated system.

SEGREGATED

In this system the sustainable palm oil remains physically separated from conventional oil throughout the entire supply chain, which requires separate tanks, trucks and refining. Buyers of segregated sustainable palm oil are guaranteed that the oil in a shipment originates from RSPO-certified plantations. The acquired oil is thus sustainable.

UTZ-certified (www.utzcertified.org) is responsible for the administration and traceability of the segregated sustainable palm oil.

Segregated system

Requirements buying and processing using the Segregated system

To be able to claim the use of sustainable palm oil from the Segregated system, a palm oil processing manufacturer requires:

- RSPO membership;
- RSPO supply chain certification.

Claim on products produced with sustainable palm oil using the Segregated system

After acquiring RSPO membership and obtaining supply chain certification, a producer is entitled to state the following claim:

This product contains (only/...%) RSPO-certified sustainable palm oil.

Requests to alter the claim can be made by sending the proposed text to the RSPO-Claims Approval Committee (CAC) for review. The CAC aims to deal with all requests within 5 working days. For more information on this subject please refer to communications@rspo.eu.

Furthermore the following RSPO Trademarks may be printed on the retail package to communicate the usage of sustainable palm oil to the consumer (RSPO Trademark graphic design rules must be met):

Buying and processing fractions of Sustainable Palm Oil

Depending on the requested type of fraction, prices may vary. In the segregated system the fractions of palm oil are agreed upon. When buying fractions of palm oil, the ratio of the fraction must be considered. The default values of the fractions are depicted in the following diagram:

Operational costs

The Certified Sustainable Palm Oil premium is agreed upon between buyer and seller. This premium includes all administrative and certification costs for UTZ Certified and RSPO.

Examples on how to calculate with ratios

For the production of 1 mt of segregated palm oil, Loders Croklaan needs 1,06 mt ( $= 1.000/940$ ) of segregated CPO to produce the required amount. This is having an impact on the sustainability premium for palm oil ( $1.06 * \text{segregated CPO premium}$ ).

For the production of 1 mt of segregated palm stearine, Loders Croklaan needs 5,32 mt ( $= 1.000/188$ ) of segregated CPO to produce the required amount. This is having an impact on the sustainability premium for palm stearine ( $5.32 * \text{segregated CPO premium}$ ).

For the production of 1 mt of segregated palm olein, Loders Croklaan needs 1,33 mt ( $= 1.000/752$ ) of segregated CPO to produce the required amount. This is having an impact on the sustainability premium for palm olein ( $1.33 * \text{segregated CPO premium}$ ).

Important

Retailers claiming the usage of sustainable palm oil in their private label products, on their websites or on promotional materials are required to acquire RSPO membership because they are the brand owner. Retailers do not need supply chain certification, except when they own the production facilities.
